THE BIBLE: WHAT A BOOK!

This book contains the mind of God, the state of man, the way of salvation, the doom of sinners, and the happiness of believers. Its doctrines are holy, its precepts are binding, its histories are true, and its decisions are immutable. Read it to be wise, believe it to be safe, and practice it to be holy.

It contains light to direct you, food to support you, and comfort to cheer you. It is the traveler's map, the pilgrim's staff, the pilot's compass, the soldier's sword, and the Christian's charter. Here paradise is restored, heaven opened, and the gates of hell disclosed. Christ is its grand subject, our good its design, and the glory of God its end. It should fill the memory, test the heart, and guide the feet. Read it slowly, frequently, prayerfully.

George Whitefield said, "God has condescended to become an author; and yet people will not read His writings. There are very few that ever gave this Book of God, the grand charter of salvation, one fair reading through."

A MODERN DAY PARABLE

Two brothers lived on adjoining farms for nearly forty years. After farming side by side, sharing machinery, and trading labor and goods as needed without a hitch, the long collaboration fell apart. It began with a small misunderstanding, grew into a major conflict, and exploded into bitter words followed by silence.

One morning there was a knock on the older brother's door. John opened it to find a man with a carpenter's toolbox. "I'm looking for work," he said. "Do you have any small jobs I could do?"

"Yes," said John, "I do have a job for you. Look across the creek at that farm. That's my younger brother's. Last week there was a meadow between us, but he took his bulldozer to the river levee and now there is a creek between us. He did it to spite me, but I'll go him one better. See that pile of lumber by the barn? I want you to build a fence—an eight-foot fence—so I won't need to see his place or his face anymore."

The carpenter replied, "I think I understand. Show me the nails and the posthole digger and I'll do a job that pleases you." John got the materials and left for the day. The carpenter worked hard all day measuring, sawing, and nailing.

About sunset John returned, just as the carpenter finished. John's eyes opened wide and his jaw dropped, for there was no fence at all. Instead there was a bridge stretching from one side of the creek to the other!

Just then the brother, Sam, was coming across the bridge with his hand outstretched. "You are quite a man to build this bridge after all I've said and done." The two brothers met in the middle of the bridge, taking each other's hand. They talked and talked.

Finally, they noticed carpenter hoist his box. "No, wait!" said John. "Stay a few days. I have other projects for you."

"I'd love to stay on," the carpenter said, "but I have many more bridges to build." Like him, the church has many bridges left to build and lives to change for the better.

How about you? Are you building a bridge or a fence?
